The China-Japan-Korea Track 2 Dialogue for Cybersecurity was jointly established by Korea University, CIIS, and Keio University in 2016. The annual dialogue is hosted by each of the academic institutions in turn. The first dialogue was held at Korea University in Seoul in 2016, followed by the second dialogue at CIIS in Beijing in 2017. The Dialogues are held under the Chatham House rules.

This 3rd Track 2 Dialogue for Cybersecurity has three different pillars of discussion, namely national development, technology, and international governance, to reflect those developments since the dialogue last year, such as developments of international law and norms, national strategies and related domestic laws in the three countries, the efforts of private sectors, and the technical challenges involved therein.

Co-Chairs reaffirm the importance of continuous dialogue; conducting research on issues of common interests; learning similarities and differences of cyber-related issues from each other; and providing recommendations for an internationally cooperative cyberspace.

The next annual dialogue will be held in Korea in 2019.
